BULL MARKET MAKES HISTORY

At the close on August 22, the current bull marked its 3,453th day, a record by S&P Dow Jones standards. Between March 9, 2009 and last Wednesday, the S&P 500 advanced 323%, with an annualized return of about 19%. Besides optimism, four other factors drove the market higher in the last nine-and-a-half years: easing by the Federal Reserve, earnings growth (corporate profits have improved in 30 of the past 35 quarters, with the only slump happening in 2015-16), share repurchases, and dip-buying on the assumption that stocks would recover from declines.<sup>1</sup>

HOME SALES WEAKEN

New National Association of Realtors data shows existing home sales fell 0.7% during July. Last month, the sales pace was the slowest recorded since February 2016. New home buying declined 1.7% in July after a 2.4% June drop, with the sales rate hitting a 9-month low.<sup>2,3</sup>

OIL FUTURES JUMP 5% IN FIVE DAYS

Crude just left its 7-week losing streak behind. Oil rose 5.4% on the NYMEX last week, settling at $68.72 after a 1.3% advance during the Friday trading session. News indicating Iran's output might fall with the imposition of U.S. sanctions helped the commodity.<sup>4</sup>

S&P 500, NASDAQ SETTLE AT NEW PEAKS

The S&P gained 0.86% last week to finish at 2,874.69, surpassing its record close of January 26. Entering fresh record territory of its own, the Nasdaq Composite pushed toward the 8,000 level, closing at 7,945.98 on Friday after advancing 1.66% across five days. The week was good to the blue chips as well: the Dow Jones Industrial Average added 0.47%, settling Friday at 25,790.35. The CBOE VIX fell 4.67% across the week to 12.05.<sup>5,6</sup>

THE WEEKLY RIDDLE

*It drapes the hills in white, it does not swallow, but it does bite.
 What is it?*

LAST WEEK'S RIDDLE: What is ready when you add a letter at its end?

ANSWER: The word "read."
