Achieving Financial Wellness without Unnecessary Risk

Let's look at the upside

I decided to focus on the optimism of the word "up" this summer. And now, everywhere I look, things are looking UP!

The economy has opened up, many people's spirits are up, friends and families are meeting up once again. Jeff Bezos became the second billionaire to blast up to space this week, and the world's best athletes will reach up to new heights and speeds in the Olympics.

It can be quite a powerful thing when we choose to look at the upside.

History has repeatedly shown that regardless of inevitable down periods, a long-term diversified strategy helps put us on the path to pursue our financial goals.

When things seem down, take a moment to redirect your focus and find what's looking up for you. And on that, we will continue to build the best strategy tailored to your goals.

So, let's talk about what's up with you lately.

Here are some hand-picked articles from some of the world's top financial publishers to help inform your week. Enjoy!

Thanks,

Margaret & Henry
