

In this week's recap: households buy more but feel less upbeat about the near future, the Dow rises, and homebuilders start more projects.

Weekly Economic Update

MID-SUMMER MEANT BUYING FOR CONSUMERS

According to new Census Bureau data, retail sales were 0.5% improved in July. Core retail sales (all categories except car and truck buying) rose 0.6% last month. The only sour note was the revision the Bureau made to June's headline and core retail sales advances. The overall June retail sales gain was reduced to 0.2% from 0.5%; the core gain, to 0.2% from 0.4%.<sup>1,2</sup>

HOUSEHOLD SENTIMENT GAUGE DISAPPOINTS

In its initial August edition, the University of Michigan's index of consumer sentiment fell 2.6 points to 95.3. That was a miss: analysts polled by Briefing.com expected a reading of 97.8. This preliminary August reading was also an 11-month low for the index.<sup>1,2</sup>

A MINOR JULY GAIN FOR HOUSING STARTS

A new federal government report showed residential construction activity up 0.9% last month. Building permits increased 1.5% after three months of retreats.<sup>3</sup>

DOW LEADS THE WAY ON WALL STREET

Ascending 1.41% over five market days, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed Friday's trading session at 25,669.32. The S&P 500 also had a positive week, advancing 0.59% to 2,850.13. The same was not true for the Nasdaq Composite. The tech-heavy benchmark lost 0.29% last week to finish at 7,816.33, Friday. Also notable: gold's weekly loss of 2.9%. A strong dollar has put pressure on the yellow metal of late, and this past week was gold's worst on the COMEX in 15 months.<sup>2,4</sup>

THE WEEKLY RIDDLE

What is ready when you add a letter at its end?

LAST WEEK'S RIDDLE: A cargo truck hauling a load of lumber can carry 2 tons. It approaches a bridge with a sign, which notes that the bridge can support up to 2 tons of weight. The driver sees the sign and reckons that the bridge should hold up under the weight of the truck. Is the driver right?

ANSWER: No, the driver is wrong. If the truck carries no load, it might make it across. The lumber the truck is carrying, however, will push the weight above 2 tons.
