

PRIVACY NOTICE

Chicago Investment Advisory Group knows that your privacy is important. We are committed to protecting the confidentiality and security of your Nonpublic Personal Information. To conduct business the investment adviser may collect Nonpublic personal information about its clients from sources such as:

- Information reported by clients on applications or other forms clients provide to the investment adviser: name, address, age, social security number, financial information, credit history, health, employment, investment objectives and goals, hobbies and similar matters.
- Information about clients' transactions with the investment adviser and its affiliates or others.
- Conversations between clients and the firm's representatives.
- We will maintain physical and electronic safeguards to protect that information.
- We do not share Nonpublic Personal Information about you.
- We have policies and procedures that direct our employees and Investment Advisors on how to protect and use Nonpublic Personal Information.
- The investment adviser will share non-public information solely to service client accounts. The investment adviser will not disclose any non-public personal information about its clients or former clients to anyone, except as permitted by law. If a client decides to close the client's account(s) with the investment adviser or becomes an inactive client, the investment adviser will continue to adhere to its privacy policy and practices with respect to that client as described in this notice.
- We will notify you in writing if we make any material changes to our Privacy Policy.

We value your trust and confidence in our ability to manage and protect your important personal information. If you have any questions or concerns regarding our Privacy Policy, please contact us at:
