'Tis the Season: Navigating the Holidays During a Pandemic

November 11th, 2020 at 2:00pm EST

Over the past several months, we have all been exposed to medical, psychological, and political events that are scary, confusing, and sad. With the holidays on the horizon, and as we enter the next phase of the pandemic, many are struggling with how to navigate this season. The holidays can elicit feelings of joy and love but, especially now, they also can bring opportunities for over-indulgence, sadness, and stress. In contrast to media images of families bonding by the fireplace, many people feel more isolated and alone than ever, some may be grieving the loss of a loved one, while others are struggling to fulfill all of their familial and work obligations. Join members of The Harvest Group and O'Connor Professional Group team for an interactive, humorous conversation about how you can approach this time to maximize mental health, productivity, and a sense of connectedness both in business and at home.
