
Markets Rally

Weekly Update – April 13, 2020

The Week on Wall Street

The stock market staged a broad rally this week, buoyed by the prospect that COVID-19's grip on the nation may be easing and news of another Federal Reserve program to help stabilize businesses.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average jumped 12.67%, while the Standard & Poor's 500 climbed 12.10%. The Nasdaq Composite Index rose 10.59% for the week. The MSCI EAFE Index, which tracks developed overseas stock markets, advanced 6.32%.^{1,2,3}

A Change in Sentiment

Market sentiment took a more hopeful turn on news of an apparent peaking of cases in Italy and New York State. Investors also welcomed comments by Dr. Anthony Fauci that the start of a turnaround in the outbreak is close at hand.

The S&P 500 Index surged 7.03% to start the week and added to gains as the week progressed. Positive trends in COVID-19 cases, an agreement between Russia and Saudi Arabia to cut oil production, and the Fed's unveiling of a $2.5 trillion loan program to assist small and midsize businesses fueled the rally.^{4,5}

Credit Markets Stabilize

As the economy shut down in March, credit markets began to exhibit deep stresses. A functional bond market is essential to economic and financial health, which is why the Federal Reserve initiated a number of actions aimed at helping them to operate.

Intervention by the Fed appears to have helped. A raft of new bond offerings may be signaling that investors are now willing to take on more risk. Last week, 11 investment-grade companies sold nearly $20 billion in bonds.⁶

A stable credit market helps the stock market, and while the bond market is not yet out of the woods, its improving health is a positive sign.

Final Thought

One of the major challenges for investors in the last month has been determining realistic stock valuations amid uncertainty over corporate earnings. With earnings season about to unfold, investors may be able to better gauge the impact of the pandemic on company profits. Investors will get to hear from corporate leaders about the state of their businesses and possibly their outlook for the next few quarters. This may help fill in the gap that currently exists but what remains uncertain is whether that information proves to be positive or negative for the market.

Seared Scallops

Serves 4

Ingredients:

- 2 Tbsp. extra virgin olive oil
- 1¼ lbs. scallops, fresh
- 3 Tbsp. unsalted butter, cubed
- 1½ Tbsp garlic, minced
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- ¼ cup broth or dry sherry
- 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
- ¼ cup parsley, chopped

Directions:

1. Remove side muscle from scallops, if attached.
2. Pat dry with paper towels.
3. Heat oil over medium-high heat until sizzling.
4. Add scallops in batches without overcrowding.
5. Season with salt and pepper and cook until lightly browned on each side, about 2 to 3 minutes.
6. Transfer seared scallops to plate.

7. In the same pan, melt 2 Tbsp. of butter, mixing with browned leftovers from scallops.
8. Add garlic and cook for one minute.
9. Pour in broth/sherry and simmer for 2 minutes.
10. Add remaining butter and lemon juice, then stir.
11. Remove pan from heat, return the scallops and gently toss in butter mixture.
12. Garnish with parsley and serve over rice, pasta, or steamed vegetables.

You May Be Able to Deduct Childcare Expenses

If you pay for childcare, so that you can work or look for a job, you may be able to deduct those expenses on your federal tax return. Here's what the IRS wants you to know:

- You can only deduct expenses for the care of a qualifying dependent, such as a child under age 13.
- You must be paying for care that allows you or your spouse to work.
- Qualifying care includes home care, daycare, or a day camp. Overnight camps, summer school tutoring, or care by other dependents do not qualify.
- You must have earned income in the year that you incur childcare expenses. The expense limit is $3,000 for one qualifying dependent or $6,000 for two or more.

For more information about deductions for dependent care, visit IRS.gov or consult a qualified tax advisor.

Where's Your Golf GPS Watch?

No, you don't have to own a golf GPS watch to enjoy a round – but once you get one, you might wonder how you ever managed to play well without it. Wearing a golf GPS watch is almost like having a pro and a caddy at your side for all 18 holes.

How far is it to the pin, and how much carry do you need to get over that ravine? The watch can tell you. How is your putting form today? Check your watch. You've never played this course before; would you like a hole-by-hole breakdown? Your watch probably has one (the best-hold data on 30,000 to 40,000 layouts). For about the price of a cheap PC, these timepieces provide a world of information, while keeping score – and most are tough and waterproof. Think about buying one.

Powered by Plants

Plant-based meals have increased in popularity over the years, but for those who might be skeptical about how to meet their daily nutritional needs, especially protein, read on to learn more. But one quick note before you do: this information isn't a substitute for medical advice. Be sure to consult your health provider and registered dietitian before making alterations to your diet.

Some of the best options for plant-based protein include:

- Soy products. Tofu, tempeh, soy milk, and edamame are all great options, and they're rich in unsaturated fats, vitamins, and minerals.
- Legumes. Beans, chickpeas, lentils, and peanuts are packed with protein, high in magnesium and other micronutrients, and full of fiber.
- Nuts and seeds. Almonds, pumpkin seeds, chia seeds – just to name a few.
- Some whole grains. Quinoa, amaranth, and teff are all good choices.
- Wheat gluten. If you can tolerate gluten, seitan can be a fantastic substitute for meat.

Now that you have the raw ingredients, look for recipe ideas on sites like Pinterest. You might even discover your next favorite meal.

Spring Clean Your Refrigerator

Is your spring cleaning in full swing? Don't forget to take care of one of the hardest-working appliances in your kitchen: your fridge. Not only will it look lovely, but you'll be reducing your carbon footprint in your kitchen too.

Do you know what the temperature of your fridge and freezer are? If your fridge is colder than 35° F or your freezer is colder than 0° F, that's wasting energy. Use a fridge and freezer thermometer to see how cold it really is, and adjust the temperature accordingly.

Does your freezer look like the North Pole? It's time to defrost and clean it out. Your freezer should never have more than a quarter-inch of frost inside. Frost build-up drastically reduces the efficiency of your freezer and increases your electric bill.
