

Customer Relationship Summary – Cullen Investment Group, Ltd.

Cullen Investment Group, Ltd (“Cullen Investment Group,” “we,” or “us”) is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as both a broker/dealer and an investment adviser and is a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC). Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for you to understand these differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

What investment services and advice can we provide you?

We offer both brokerage and investment advisory services to clients. Here is a summary of the main types of services that we offer and their key features:

Services:

Brokerage (commission based): As a broker-dealer, our primary service is buying and selling securities for your account at your direction. We can offer recommendations to buy, sell, or hold securities but you make the final investment decisions. We do not offer these services to new clients but continue to service residual accounts for existing clients.

Investment Advisory (fee based): As an investment adviser we offer managed accounts. All our investment advisory accounts are discretionary, which means we select which investment assets to buy, sell, or hold. We also offer other investment advisory services including:

- Financial Planning: Your financial professional helps you develop a detailed strategy or financial plan intended to achieve your financial objectives.
- Investment Consulting: Your financial professional offers advice on investments held at or outside of Cullen Investment Group.

Monitoring your account:

Brokerage: We do not agree to provide account monitoring services for your brokerage accounts. Your financial professional may voluntarily review holdings in your brokerage accounts from time to time and may or may not make recommendations to you based on these reviews. These voluntary account reviews are not an account monitoring service.

Investment Advisory: We monitor advisory accounts from time to time consistent with your advisory relationship with us and type of your advisory account

Account minimums:

Some individual securities such as mutual funds (in either type account) may have investment minimums.

Brokerage: We do not offer this type of account any longer.

Investment Advisory: The minimum new account size is generally $500,000. Smaller accounts, if accepted, may be charged a minimum annual fee of 1% or $1,000, whichever is larger. Fees are negotiable.

Limited range of investment offerings:

We do not offer proprietary products in either type account.

Brokerage: We do not offer or make recommendations on all products of any particular type; for example, we do not offer or make recommendations on all mutual funds nor make available all share classes of the mutual funds we do offer.

Investment Advisory: Depending on your choice of account type, strategy and model, you may receive advice with respect to a broad range of investments, or you may receive advice regarding a limited range of investments. For example, we do not make all mutual funds available for use in advisory programs and generally limit the offered mutual funds to a single share class.

CONVERSATION STARTERS:

- Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Should I choose a brokerage service? Should I choose both types of services? Why or why not?
- How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- What is your experience, including your licenses, education and qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

What fees will you pay? What are Cullen Investment Group's financial incentives?

Brokerage: You will incur transaction charges when you buy or sell securities, including:

- commissions;
- markups and markdowns (analogous to commissions but in a principal transaction);
- upfront or ongoing fees that you pay to a mutual fund or other product issuer, a portion of which is paid to us in connection with your transaction; and
- handling and processing fees on each securities transaction.

Transaction charges differ from one product to another which creates an incentive for us to recommend products that have higher transaction charges. You will incur greater total transaction charges when there are more trades in your account, which creates an incentive for us to encourage you to trade more often.

Depending upon your account and relationship, you may also incur periodic account-maintenance fees or IRA custodial fees, as well as processing, service, and account fees upon certain events or occurrences. You will incur interest charges if you borrow on margin or draw down on a securities-based loan in any of your accounts. Certain investments, such as mutual funds, have embedded fees that are generally paid by you to the companies that sponsor, manage, and/or promote the investment.

Investment Advisory: You will incur advisory fees which are generally assessed quarterly at the rate you agreed upon with your financial professional (based on our published fee schedule). If you have investment products carrying underlying management fees and operating expenses or other charges, our advisory fee is in addition to those fees. Advisory clients will also receive our Firm Brochure, another disclosure document explaining fees.

Because we as a firm and your individual financial professional are compensated based on the amount of assets in your account, we and your financial professional are incentivized to grow your assets. During periods of lower trading activity, the advisory fee may be higher than the transaction charges you would have paid in a brokerage account.

To determine whether an investment advisory account is appropriate for you, you should carefully analyze the projected costs of an investment advisory account versus a brokerage account based on factors such as expected size, volume and frequency of transactions, projected holding period, and the advisory services provided by your financial professional.

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs reduce the amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

CONVERSATION STARTERS:

- Help me understand how fees and costs affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?
- What are your obligations to me when acting as my broker-dealer versus acting as my investment adviser?
- How does your firm make money, and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation as a broker-dealer or act as your investment adviser, we must act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, some of the ways we make money create conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask about these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations and investment advice provided to you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

- Proprietary Products – We do not offer proprietary products.
- Third-Party Payments – We receive payments from a third-party when you invest in certain products (ex. mutual funds). These payments represent additional compensation to us or compensate us for ongoing support activities we perform on behalf of third parties, such as product servicing or recordkeeping. This results in a financial incentive to recommend products that provide additional compensation to us over those that pay lesser amounts or none at all. Such payments may also affect which products we make available.
- Revenue Sharing – The companies that sponsor, manage, and/or promote certain investments offered by us earn revenue by charging you a fee, such as a management fee in a mutual fund. A portion of these fees may be shared with us. We use such payments in part to support activities related to servicing client accounts, and to provide ongoing product support for certain investments. This financial incentive creates a conflict of interest to promote the product sponsors that share the most revenues over those that share less revenues or none at all.
- Principal Trading - We may buy a security from you or sell you a security from our own account. This activity occurs predominantly with fixed-income securities. This may create incentives for us to act against your best interest either to generate trading profits or to avoid losses. When permitted in an advisory account, each principal transaction requires your consent.

This summary does not identify all our conflicts of interest, or all material facts about the conflicts of interest listed. For additional information about these and other conflicts of interest, please see our entire Form ADV.

CONVERSATION STARTERS:

- How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?
- How do your financial professionals make money?

Most individual financial professionals are compensated as a percentage of their firm's revenue sources described below:

- Commissions, markups and markdowns earned in brokerage accounts, which vary by product
- Ongoing fees from mutual fund and certain other product issuers
- Advisory fees which are generally assessed quarterly at the rate you agreed upon with your financial professional (based on our published fee schedule)
- Fees related to other products and services provided to you

The percentage of revenue that your financial professional receives will generally increase as total revenue earned from their client accounts increases. Therefore, financial professionals are incentivized to increase revenues on your and other clients' accounts.

Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

Yes, in 1996 the NASD disciplined the Firm for not reporting a political contribution in a timely fashion to the MRSB. Go to Broker Investor.gov/CRS for a free and simple search tool to research us and your financial professionals.

CONVERSATION STARTER:

- As a financial professional, do you have any disciplinary history? For what type of product?
